

THE CAT THAT WANTED A HOME

BY TRENDSETTER1234

The story begins in a forest.

The kitty cat accidentally got lost in the forest.

The cat sees the city on the horizon and runs toward it.

The cat finally reached the city but had to take the highway, which was clogged with heavy traffic. Kitty waited patiently to cross to the other side.

Little Girl: Can we stop to pick up the kitten?

Dad: Yes, we stopped to pick up the kitten.

The dad pulled over, picked up the kitten, brought it into the car, and handed it to the little girl to hold.

Little Girl: Thank you, Daddy, I love it! Let's see if it's a boy or girl kitten. Oh, my goodness, it's a girl! I'll name you Sheba after hearing the name Sheba in church.

Mom: A good name for her might be Joy, As the kitten purred with happiness in the car, she embraced her new home.

They are finally home, and the kitty is so happy she settled in so quickly.

Little Girl: Come on, Sheba, I'll show you to my room.

Sheba let out a meow at her.

Mom: Sheba, your food is ready! Shelly, lunch is ready!

Sheba finished every bite and then purred her thanks to the mom by rubbing against her leg.

A few days passed, and Sheba discovered that the little girl was up to no good and involved in something very dangerous.

A little girl was chatting with a strange man on the internet.

Sheba thought to herself if she could just talk, warn her, block that man, and tell her parents.

Sheba: I wish I could talk and get the little girl out of danger.

Sheba hissed loudly, knowing it would bring the parents rushing in, and sure enough, it did.

MOM: Shelly, what are you doing? Who is that you're talking to? It's a good thing Sheba meowed loudly, or you could have gotten hurt by that man.

Dad called the police, and they traced the IP address. A young female cop posed as her to catch the guy, and they succeeded.

Shelly: I'm sorry, Mom and Dad. I won't talk to strangers anymore. I'm deleting my name off this site. I met him after school, and he gave me his name to chat with him on.

The cop had to attend her school's special assembly.

The next day at school, an older guy appeared.

Older Guy: Hey kid, come here.

Shelly: I'm not supposed to talk to strangers.

Older Guy: I've got a free sample for you to try.

Shelly: No, thank you. I need to go home now.

Older Guy: You're not going anywhere.

Shelly loudly shouted "stranger danger" with her voice.

Teacher: Get away from her now.

The Kids dad: Shelly, get in the car. I'll take you home.

The Kids Mom: I am calling the parents right now. Another parent's dad went after him and caught him.

Shelly: Am I in trouble? He offered me a free sample of white powder.

The Kids Mom: No, dear, I'm actually proud of you.

Shelly is scared and crying.

The Kids dad: Shelly, get in the car. I'll take you home.

The Kids Mom: I am calling the parents right now. Another parent's dad went after him and caught him.

Shelly: Am I in trouble? He offered me a free sample of white powder.

The Kids Mom: No, dear, I'm actually proud of you.

Shelly is scared and crying.

The Kids Mom: Don't cry, I think we'll pick you and take you home.

Shelly: will wait for me outside school door?

The Kids Mom: Yes, I will do it for both of you.

And Mom said to pick you up after work from our place.

Shelly: Can you go to my place and get Sheba? I need her to calm down.

The kids' dad said, "Yes, let's go." They stopped, picked up Sheba, and now they are at home.

Shelly holds Sheba tightly as she finally feels calm and relaxed.

Sheba walks into another room, spots her dad with a Bible, and gives him a look that clearly says, "What are you doing and why?"

Kid's Dad: Come up here, Sheba! If you want to learn about the Bible, it has lots of great stories about Jesus and God. I can teach you how to pray—would you like that?

Sheba meowed and purred, saying, "Yes, please teach me."

The Kids Dad: All of you, put your hands together like this and pray. If it's you, just put your paws together and get on your knees.

Sheba purrs a thank you to the kids' dad.

An emergency school meeting was texted to all parents while Sheba was learning to pray.

The Kid's Mom: hon i just recieved a text there is emergency parents meeting i have to attend i know about two times shelly was attack and other child.

The Kid's Dad: I'll be right there, excuse me, Sheba.

Sheba put her two paws together and prayed.

Sheba: She thought to herself, "To my heavenly Father." in heaven, if you can hear me, I would like a way to communicate with Shelly. Thank you.

Shelly: Sheba, there you are! Sheba, were you praying just now?

Sheba: Meow, yes I was.

The kid's parents heard Shelly laughing confidently and without fear.

The Kid's Dad: what so funny?

Shelly: I saw Sheba praying with her paws together—so funny!

The Kid's Dad: I know I taught you to be a good girl, Sheba.

The Kid's Dad: Hon and Bonnie get in here so we pray as group

Bonnie: Okay, Dad.

The Kid's Mom: I think it's a wonderful idea.

Sheba: Meow as well.

They all joined hands and prayed for a solution to keep the school safe from harm.

Together: Amen!

doorbell

The Kid's Mom: I'll get it.

Mom: Shelly, are you okay, dear?

Shelly: I'm fine, but it's a shame you weren't here a bit earlier. Could we do one more group prayer and include my parents this time?

The Kid's Parent's: of course,

They mentioned another deeply powerful prayer.

Mom: Shelly, I see went home and got Sheba.

The Kid's Mom: Susan can i have word with you in other room

Shelly's Mom: of course.

Shelly's Mom is hysterically worried as they talk, while a drug dealer approaches Shelly about drugs and mentions meeting tonight.

Shelly's Mom: We'll be there.

Thank you, Shelly. It's time to go home now.

They are home now.

Shelly: Bonnie's mom and dad said, "Pick me up and take me home."

Mom: Of course, it's okay.

Shelly: Earlier, I saw Sheba with her paws pressed together and her eyes closed—it was absolutely adorable. I got a picture see.

Mom: Wow, I've never seen a cat pray before. It's a miracle, hon. God sent Sheba to Shelly.

Shelly: Do I have to go to the meeting tonight? If not, who will stay with me?

Mom: No, dear, you don't have to go.

Dad: I'll ask Grandma to stay with you. And I agree, Shelly was frightened, but Sheba's prayer made Shelly so happy—it was a miracle.

Grandma agreed, but the parents at the meeting were outraged.

Grandma is here and caught Sheba praying; she's very proud of Sheba.

Grandma: What did you pray for, Sheba?

Sheba: Meow.

Grandma: Oh, I see. No more harm will come to Shelly. Good girl. And the school will put tight security measures in place, Having male teachers outside to ensure the kids are safe and get home without harm is a good idea.

an angel appeared before Sheba

Angel: It's time to come home now, your job on Earth is done, and other children need you.

Shelly: Okay, Sheba, you can go. Thank you for all your help, Sheba. I'll miss you.

The parents came in and watched as Sheba left with the angel.

The end.
